Cosy Self-Catering at the End of the Pennine Way

This deceptively spacious cottage sits in the small conservation village of Kirk Yetholm, just one mile from the border between Scotland and England at the northern end of the famous 268-mile 'Pennine Way', and beside the recently created 62-mile 'St Cuthbert's Way'.

The cottage is an ideal base from which to explore the beautiful Borders countryside and beyond, and there are many outdoor activities available nearby, such as cycling, golf, country sports, historic buildings and some of the finest fishing in the whole of the UK.
